After rape or sexual assault

If you have experienced the trauma of rape or sexual assault it is important that you keep yourself as emotionally and physically safe as possible. Although the experience can be overwhelming, there are several issues that will need your consideration, such as:

- Reporting the incident to the police
- Preservation of forensic evidence
- Risk of HIV and access to early treatment intervention
- Risk of sexually transmitted infections
- Risk of pregnancy

We will listen to you, we will respect you and we will believe you.

If you have been recently raped you can access Cheshire Sexual Assault Referral Centre (0161 276 6515) or Merseyside Sexual Assault Referral Centre (0151 295 3550).

Effects of sexual violence

Individuals who have been affected by sexual violence may experience a wide range of short and/or long term emotional and physical effects which can have a negative impact upon their lives.

People respond to sexual assault or abuse in many ways - these could include a sense of being numb, feelings of rage or anger, a sense of fear, confusion, guilt, and/or many other emotions. Physical effects may include injuries to the body, pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases.

Sexual violence can impact upon how individuals see themselves, and how they relate to others. Each person has their own way of coping - there is no right or wrong way to react to sexual violence.

Please remember that what happened was not your fault and you are not to blame for the actions of another individual.

Independent Sexual Violence Advisor (ISVA)

ISVAs are specially trained to work sensitively in response to the needs of individuals who have experienced sexual violence, and offer both practical and emotional support. ISVAs provide advocacy and support throughout reporting to the police and any subsequent legal proceedings. ISVAs can help with health issues, such as GUM appointments with other social support agencies as required.
